Introduction

In the distant future of an alternate universe...A group of conquerors known as the Chamber of Roses, driven by a personal vendetta against humanity, sought to create a world where they were fully in control. They eventually succeeded using their superior military might and advanced combat tactics.

Centuries later they have grown in numbers and remained the single most powerful and influential group in the world. They single handedly control a majority of the wealth and resources on the planet and impose their will on all detractors using brutal violence. This gives them the leverage to create thier own cities, establish their own laws and choose who can reap the benefits of their decadent lifestyle of luxury and excess.

In this world the major religions and governments have very little power or influence. There are no racial identities, no political parties, no justice system, no middle class...just the few elite and the many who have nothing. Those with nothing are forced to fight for survival in the wasteland; the toppled remains of once thriving cities annihilated by the Chamber of Roses during their quest for World Domination. This is a world where technology, science and mysticism take precedence over morality and humanity.

Many groups have risen to oppose The Chamber of Roses, however only one was able to disrupt them. Led by a powerful military genius, this group of revolutionaries was eventually eradicated, but not before causing significant setbacks to the Chamber of Roses power structure. Now, decades later, a new potential leader has surfaced who must unlock his power to permanently end the rule of the Chamber of Roses by uniting the many tribes, gangs and factions of the wasteland to fight "The Last War".

That man is Jericho Cutter. This is his story...

CYRUS

When the Chamber of Roses made thier final push for World Domination, Cyrus emerged as thier most feared and acclaimed soldier. For his service, the Chamber rewarded him with genetic and technological enhancements making him an even more efficient warrior. Currently, Cyrus is the Chief Compliance Officer for the Chamber. His mission... Seek and Destroy all threats to the Chamber's authority. Cyrus needs no judge or jury... just his fist. Detractors are dealt with swiftly, brutally and publicly to serve as a warning to others.

HYENAS

A crew of sociopaths, thugs, misfits and rejects that serve under Cyrus as his “Compliance” Officers. The Hyenas are quick witted, fun loving jokesters who love a good roast. But don’t let thier playful nature fool you... they also have an obsession with violence and will not hesitate to beat you half to death... then roast you again. Most of the members of the Hyenas were once Chamber of Roses Initiates but were expelled from the program for their disruptive behavior and reckless disregard for authority... and that’s exactly why Cyrus loves them and hand picked each member to join his team.

LOMAX

Lomax quickly climbed the ranks of the Chamber of Roses using his intellect and passion for treachery. Where he lacks in physical strength, he excels with his ability to manipulate every situation to fit his will. As the Head of Civil Compliance, Lomax is Cyrus' direct superior and controls the Dark Templars.

DARK TEMPLARS

The Dark Templars are the most elite, the most disciplined, and the most skillfully trained warriors in the land. During the era before the Chamber of Roses dominated, the Dark Templars were the military branch of the Church created to serve as protection against outside threats. However, after the Chamber made an offer they couldn't refuse, the Dark Templars were enlisted as the personal security force for Chamber of Roses officials and serve exclusively under the command of Lomax. Nobody knows if they are human, machine, or something else but legends say that no man or woman has faced the Dark Templars in combat and survived to tell the story.
